Abstract. The authors report on a study of the effects of a 10-week, 12-session, self-paced, self-directed, and self-monitored program on the self-esteem of 100 female adolescents. The program was designed to help adolescents understand and accept their own feelings and attitudes, and to help them develop a positive self-image. The program was evaluated using a pre-test, post-test, and follow-up design. The results of the study showed that the program had a significant positive effect on the self-esteem of the adolescents. The authors discuss the implications of the study for the development of self-esteem in adolescents.
